

Gerson Lehrman Group to host a two-day Clean Tech Summit in San Francisco, November 19-20

New York, NY—November 12, 2008—Gerson Lehrman Group, the world's marketplace for expertise, will host the Clean Tech Summit in San Francisco, CA, from November 19-20 at the Palace Hotel. This two day, multi-track, multi-disciplinary event will showcase leading experts in the clean tech arena, who will cover a range of hot-button issues related to intellectual property, innovation, and investment. The event is open to the public.

Over the course of two days, industry thought leaders will converge to discuss current and emerging patterns and best practices in clean technology investments, both portfolio and strategic, including valuations, timelines, and exit strategies.

Clean tech investing in the United States has grown exponentially in recent years and will continue to do so as demand for renewable and clean energy and technology increases across the country. Attendees looking to capitalize on this opportunity will be given access to top industry experts at a program that focuses on business and investment strategies across a broad array of clean technologies, including: renewable energy sources; bio and alternative fuels; energy storage and transmission including Smart Grids; water and wastewater; green building and construction; and hybrid and electric vehicles.

Dmitri Mehlhorn, Managing Director of Gerson Lehrman Group said, "We are thrilled to be hosting The Summit this year in San Francisco. Gerson Lehrman Group is a leading provider of expertise that decision makers rely on for information on new and emerging sectors such as clean tech. This is also a great opportunity for us to showcase the breadth and depth of our offering, including insights from some of our more than 200,000 experts, to the broad audience interested in the clean tech space."

Through more than 20 individual sessions at The Summit, attendees will gain access to experts in this growing field, and will be given the opportunity to participate in in-depth workshops involving valuable technological innovations and networking opportunities.
